TRILAN (A NEW START IN LANGUAGES)

This language code which is created by Chang P. Liu of United States of America relates English, Spanish and Chinese in a new and unique way. Special Chinese language symbols are used in conjunction with Latin and English alphabets to define a new Shinese language system that is closely related to Chinese but much less confusing. This new coded Shinese language with words of specific visual and phonetic components has made it more proper for communication.

The relationship among the three world languages are defined in the following proprietary TRILAN diagram:
